

ACADEMY OF ART

Why is art important?

What does art mean to a child?

Is art still a part of our culture?

How will art influence my child?

My child is not artistic, why art class?

Academy of Art has discovered and researched facts about art and how art affects children of all ages.

Academy of Art has found through teaching art we help a child grow in the following areas:

- Promote self-esteem
- Recognize elements & principles of art
- Eye/hand coordination (fine motor skills)
- The ability to learn to create what they see
- Learn Art History and Culture
- Experience different mediums
- Create a higher level of concentration and an interest in learning
- Strengthen auditory processing and now these developments create our program goals!

WAIT! We have more....

We have researched and found some interesting facts and want to share!

10 Truths About Art

The arts teach children to make good judgments about qualitative relationships.

Unlike much of the curriculum in which correct answers and rules prevail, in the arts, it is judgment rather than rules that prevail.

The arts teach children that problems can have more than one solution and that questions can have more than one answer.

The arts celebrate multiple perspectives.

One of their large lessons is that there are many ways to see and interpret the world.

The arts teach children that in complex forms of problem solving purposes are seldom fixed, but change with circumstance and opportunity. Learning in the arts requires the ability and a willingness to surrender to the unanticipated possibilities of the work as it unfolds.

The arts make vivid the fact that neither words in their literal form nor number exhaust what we can know. The limits of our language do not define the limits of our cognition.

The arts teach students that small differences can have large effects.

The arts traffic in subtleties.

The arts teach students to think through and within a material.

All art forms employ some means through which images become real.

The arts help children learn to say what cannot be said.

When children are invited to disclose what a work of art helps them feel, they must reach into their poetic capacities to find the words that will do the job.

The arts enable us to have experience we can have from no other source and through such experience to discover the range and variety of what we are capable of feeling.

The arts' position in the school curriculum symbolizes to the young what adults believe is important.

National Art Education Association

SOURCE: Eisner, E. (2002). The Arts and the Creation of Mind, In Chapter 4, What the Arts Teach and How It Shows. (pp. 70-92). Yale University Press. Available from NAEA Publications.

Did You Know?

Young people who participate in the arts for at least three hours on three days each week through at least one full year are:

- 4 times more likely to be recognized for academic achievement
- 3 times more likely to be elected to class office within their schools
- 4 times more likely to participate in a math and science fair
- 3 times more likely to win an award for school attendance
- 4 times more likely to win an award for writing an essay or poem

Young artists, as compared with their peers, are likely to:

- Attend music, art, and dance classes nearly three times as frequently
- Participate in youth groups nearly four times as frequently
- Read for pleasure nearly twice as often
- Perform community service more than four times as often

Living the Arts through Language + Learning: A Report on Community-based Youth Organizations, Shirley Brice Heath, Stanford University and Carnegie Foundation For the Advancement of Teaching, Americans for the Arts Monograph, November 1998)

The facts are that arts education...

- makes a tremendous impact on the developmental growth of every child and has proven to help level the "learning field" across socio-economic boundaries.

(Involvement in the Arts and Success in Secondary School, James S. Catterall, The UCLA Imagination Project, Graduate School of Education & Information Studies, UCLA, Americans for the Arts Monograph, January 1998)

- has a measurable impact on youth at risk in deterring delinquent behavior and truancy problems while also increasing overall academic performance among those youth engaged in after school and summer arts programs targeted toward delinquency prevention.

(Youth ARTS Development Project, 1996, U.S. Department of Justice, National Endowment for the Arts, and Americans for the Arts)

Businesses understand that arts education...

- builds a school climate of high expectation, discipline, and academic rigor that attracts businesses relocating to your community.
- strengthens student problem-solving and critical thinking skills, adding to overall academic achievement and school success.
- helps students develop a sense of craftsmanship, quality task performance, and goal-setting—skills needed to succeed in the classroom and beyond.
- can help troubled youth, providing an alternative to destructive behavior and another way for students to approach learning.
- provides another opportunity for parental, community, and business involvement with schools, including arts and humanities organizations.
- helps all students develop more appreciation and understanding of the world around them.
- helps students develop a positive work ethic and pride in a job well done.

(Business Circle for Arts Education in Oklahoma, "Arts at the Core of Learning 1999 Initiative")

Arts education research studies explores critical links between learning in the arts and the nation's ability to successfully meet this goal.

TWO STUDIES: Visual Arts and Reading

Being taught to "read" art through a "visual thinking curriculum" helped 9- and 10-year-old students develop their reasoning based on visual evidence. This increased ability translated into better "reading" of evidence in science.

source: Critical Links: Learning in the Arts and Student Academic and Social Developments, 2002, p.142 study: Investigating the Educational Impact and Potential of the Museum of Modern Art's Visual Thinking curriculum: Final Report

Assessments of 6th graders' history understanding using drawing as well a writing helped students veal more of what they knew than using just writing. This held true for both English language proficient and English limited students.

Source: Critical Links: Learning in the Arts and Student Academic and Social Development, p. 141

Study: The Arts, Language and Knowing: An Experimental Study of the Potential of the Visual Arts for Assessing Academic Learning by Language Minority Students

7th grade boys who were "reluctant readers" but were interested in visual art were given several visual art exercises that resulted in them taking a more active role in reading and interpreting the text rather than just passively reading it. The students were asked to, "create cutouts or find objects that would represent characters and ideas in the story they were reading, and then use these to dramatize the story...draw a picture of strong visual impressions formed while reading a story...illustrate books...(and) depict visually the key details of nonfiction texts."

source: Critical Links: Learning in the Arts and Student Academic and Social Development, 2002, p.144

study: Reading is Seeing: using Visual Response to Improve the Literary Reading of Reluctant Readers

The nation's schools are being challenged to make sure
"no child is left behind"
as they strive to help all students reach the level of achievement essential for success in school, work, and life in the 21st century.

And the sad news is....

Arts education is not mandated (in Colorado). However, the law states that if schools teach arts, districts must adopt standards for arts that meet or exceed the state standards.

If the nation is striving to reach a higher level of achievement....why would art be removed or not mandated in schools?

Art is a positive influence that greatly enables children to succeed!

Art is being removed from our schools and is not valued as an asset in our children's lives!

PLEASE support the arts and any art programs that provide creativity, expression, and hope for our youth!

Art is for everyone of all ages, talented or not, artistic or not.

We encourage you to express yourself and find healing in creating!

ACADEMY OF ART

Janessa Marsh
and Jessica Basile

www.academyofart.us
academyofart@comcast.net

720-933-0229

We hope you have been challenged and encouraged with this information.
This is only a tiny scope or a chip off an iceberg.